Independence Bowl – Monday, Dec 26

NFL

N CAROLINA over Missouri by 6

Nothing could be finer than to be in Carolina this time of the football season. After all, the NFL Panthers are en route to tripling last year's win total while the ACC's Tar Heels and Wolfpack are both bowl bound. For UNC, it's out with an interim and in with a new head coach when Everett Withers calls the shots for the final time on the sidelines before handing the keys over to Larry Fedora. And a win today would equal the same eight victories recorded by the team each of the previous three seasons under former head coach Butch Davis. Before skipping off to Columbus to join Ohio State's urban renewal project as the Buckeyes' new defensive coordinator, Withers has the full admiration and respect of this year's squad. RB Giovanni Bernard said the Independence Bowl game has a lot more meaning than meets the eye. "It's a big thing," Bernard said. "It's for Coach Withers and everyone on this staff and team. It would be special for them to go out with a win." QB Bryn Renner feels the same saying, "We've had a great couple practices through exams. I think we're ready to play for this staff and these seniors and send them out on a good note." Meanwhile, the perfect fodder arrives in Missouri from the defensively depleted Big 12, a team that is just 9-16 ATS in games against bowlers the past four seasons. That's because Big 12 bowl favorites who own an equal or greater win percentage than their opponents are 2-6 SU and 0-8 ATS when entering off a season-ending win of 14 or more points. The Heels win one for the skipper today.

PHILADELPHIA over Dallas by 7

Talk about a false sense of security, America's Team returns home off a 16-point win at Tampa last week feeling good about their chances in the NFC East. Sitting back atop the division and in control of their own fate, the Cowboys can clinch the crown with a win today OR next week against the Giants. Looking up at it all, the 3rd-place Eagles arrive knowing they can sneak into the postseason with a pair of season-ending victories and a little help from their friends. But first things first as Philly goes nowhere without a win here today. Despite its 6-8 record, the Eagles take the field owning the better offense and the better defense – even with QB Michael Vick missing three games this season with injury. As we alluded to in the PLAYBOOK newsletter, Tony Romo and the Cowboys are famous for gagging in December as his 3-8 SU and 1-10 ATS career mark when playing off win would attest, including 0-5 SU and ATS when taking on an opponent off a win. Toss in Dallas' dreadful 0-9 ATS mark as division favorites against rivals off back-to-back SU and ATS wins – including 0-5 SU and ATS the last five – and we have plenty of technical support to boot. Add Andy Reid's 10-1 ATS career mark in road games with win percentage of less than .444 against opponents with a better record, including 6-0 ATS in division frays, and this dog looks live today. Oh yeah, that Tampa security blanket win we alluded to at the top of this writeup. Teams that have defeated Raheem Morris' Bucs are just 3-10 ATS at home their next game, including 0-5 ATS when hosting a division foe. There goes that feel-good feeling.
